SHS Academic Team News

Congratulations to the SHS Academic Teams which competed on Tuesday, April 17, at the Indiana Academic Super Bowl sponsored by Purdue University and held at Austin High School. Team members are Jerel Taylor, Chris Morris, Cassandra Simone, Aleesha Simone, Hyeree Ellis, Emily Armstrong, Bryce Peters, Caleb Amick, John Cleveland, Mackenzie Donovan and Lauren Howser.

The schools included with Scottsburg in Class 2 were Corydon, Madison Consolidated, North Harrison and Salem. The events included Science, Fine Arts, Social Studies, Math, English and Interdisciplinary. All our teams performed well, but special mention goes to the English team which scored a 20 out of 25 to win their class. They had the high score for the entire round and will advance to the State level at Purdue on May 5, 2012.

They are coached by Mrs. Shawna Slaton.

Band of Warriors Compete!

If you thought that the SHS Band rested after Marching season then you would be mistaken. The Band of Warriors competes all year long and an example of that is tonight's Concert Band competition in Columbus, IN.

This is no surprise to our band parents or their students, but for many of our families they are unaware of the great opportunities for competition that reside in our program from marching, to ensemble and solos, to percussion and even concert band. Good luck to the Band of Warriors!

Scottsburg New Tech Video Challenge

Scottsburg High School has been notified that two of their sophomore groups' work have become finalists in the New Tech Network contest. The contest asked students to produce a short video that could capture the culture of a New Tech school. The Historical Foundations of Globalization class led by Travis Martin and Connie Deardorff made this contest part of a project that explored the concept of what makes a "Revolution."

Scottsburg New Tech students created, presented and submitted their videos in March which showed New Tech as a type of revolution. On April the 13th the school was notified that 2 of their entries were in the top 13 finalists which were chosen out of 100 submissions from around the nation. One selected video was created by Amanda Amick, Skylar Burke and Savannah Barber. The other video's team consisted of Paolo Brex, Aaron Barnett and Alex Alexander.

These videos have been posted to facebook/twitter/youtube where they will compete for the most number of likes.

According to Krista Clark Director of Communications for New Tech Network (NTN), the panel assessing the video submissions will include members from the field of journalism, business, film industry, education and NTN. Five videos will be highlighted, and one group will be sent to the annual NT conference in Grand Rapids to present the winning video. The winning video will be featured in a national press release and have possible media interviews.

PREPARING FOR GRADUATION EXAM

Every Indiana student who hopes to graduate with a diploma is required to take the ISTEP+ GQE-ECA (Graduation Qualifying Exam-End of Course Assessment). If students do not pass the exam the first time, they can retest each time the test is offered - once a semester until they graduate or until they pass the test.

There are three testing windows: English 10, Algebra I, and Biology I. Once students complete each of these courses, they take the ECA test for that course.

English 10:	April 25 - May 4
Biology I:	May 7 - May 15
Algebra:	May 16 - May 25

As the spring dates draw near, we have a few tips for those students preparing for the exams.

- 1) Practice skills for English and Algebra through Study Island - website: www.studyisland.com - see your English or math teacher to make sure your name is uploaded into the program
- 2) Get plenty of sleep the night before scheduled exams - exact dates of exams within the windows will be posted and students will be notified of those dates
- 3) Eat a good breakfast for morning exams and a good lunch before afternoon exams
